

MIKE COOKE

About Me

I never wanted to be an astronaut, train driver or fireman... from a very young age my mother knew I would do something in finance mainly because the games I used to play as a child all revolved around running a Bank! Since leaving full time education I worked my way up through a Retail Bank and then moved to join a Building Society, advising their clients on all financial areas. In 1999 I realised that my whole focus was giving the client the best advice possible, which unfortunately was not always something I could do through the strictures of a large financial institution, therefore, the only way forward was to set up my own business and offer independent, whole of market advice... and so Enable was born.

Personal

Although born and bred in Bishop's Stortford I moved to Great Chesterford in 2001 and I live there happily with my wife Caty and my three fantastic daughters - Aimee, Imogen and Evie. They, together with work, take up a lot of my time. However, when time allows I do enjoy a physical and mental challenge or two, mainly to do with endurance cycling, (Lands End to John O'Groats, London to Paris, London to Brighton to name but a few) and also when the weather is good, I take to my bike and pedal to and from work - so on a sunny day if you espy a somewhat rotund, red-faced cyclist huffing along the old A11 please give me a good wide berth!
